a beautifully photographed documentary and a history of the island's intertwined politics and passion for cars. San Francisco Chronicle silver medal winner International Automotive Media Competition. The story of how Cuba came to be trapped in automotive time is a fascinating one. For decades the island country had enjoyed a healthy tourism trade and American outpost status and by the 1950s it had the highest per capita automotive purchasing of any Latin American country but when Cuba fell to communist rebels in 1959 so ended the inflow of new cars. The U.S. embargo forced Cuba's car enthusiasts to develop a unique and insular culture, one marked by great ingenuity as they kept cars alive with no opportunity to acquire replacement parts, customized cars with no access to aftermarket parts and drag raced with no drag strip. In many ways Cuba is a time machine in which the newest car is a 1959 Chevy or perhaps one of the Soviet Ladas. Cuba's car culture offers an inside look at a unique car culture populated with cars that have been cut off from the world so long that they've morphed into something else. In the spirit of automotive survival Tom Cotter and Bill Warner, founder of the Amelia Island Concours, take readers on a whirlwind tour beginning with Cuba's pre-Castro car and racing history and moving up to today's lost collector cars, street racing and the challenges of keeping decades-old cars on the road. Illustrated throughout with rare historical photos as well as contemporary images, it's a scenic ride for anyone who enjoys classic cars. Whether they're old Chevy Bel Airs, Studebakers or Ford Fairlanes and a cruise around Cuba that will make you feel like a kid in a candy store.

Over the years cars have helped to define the experiences and self-perceptions of women in complex and sometimes unexpected ways. When women take the wheel, family structure and public space are reconfigured and re-gendered, creating a context for a literary tradition in which the car has served as a substitute for an escape from and an extension of the home, as well as a surrogate mother, a financial safeguard and a means of self-expression. Driving Women examines the intersection of American fiction, primarily but not exclusively by women, and automobile culture. Deborah Clarke argues that issues critical to twentieth-century American society—technology, mobility, domesticity, and agency—are repeatedly articulated through women's relationships with cars. Women writers took surprisingly intense interest in car culture and its import for modern life as the car replete with material and symbolic meaning recast literal and literary female power in the automotive age. Clarke draws on a wide range of literary works, both canonical and popular, to document women's fascination with cars from many perspectives. Historical, psychological, economic, ethnic authors discussed include Wharton, Stein, Faulkner, O'Connor, Morrison, Erdrich, Mason, Kingsolver, Lopez, Kadohata, Smiley, Senna, Viramontes, Allison, and Silko. By investigating how cars can function as female space, reflect female identity, and reshape female agency, this engaging study opens up new angles from which to approach fiction by and about women and traces new directions in the intersection of literature, technology, and gender.
